VIRTUAL PROTOTYPING TODAY: INDUSTRIAL IMPACT AND FUTURE TRENDS

*VILLA CAROLI-ZANCHI
STEZZANO (BG)*

3rd - 4th OCTOBER 2002

GENERAL INFORMATION

Engin Soft, and its partners in promoting virtual prototyping technologies and training, would like to invite firms, research centres, and universities to come together to collect and exchange ideas, approaches, and information that can be useful and enjoyed by all parties: not only experts, but also those interested in the overall picture and the current state of the art.

To this end, the character of the meeting will be that of a forum with many points of view and in particular: the manager's perspective, engineering data management and technology transfer.

CONFERENCE AIMS

The conference will seek to answer key questions such as:

- Does simulation play an essential role in improving a firm's competitiveness? For which firms? In which conditions?
- What should we expect nowadays from virtual simulation? And in the future?
- There is a variety of different technologies on the market. Is there any interaction between these technologies? In what terms can we talk of integration?
- Can simulation codes still provide the complete solution to industrial problems? Can the process-product-performance chain be profitably reproduced in the virtual world?
- How can we efficiently provide suitable and ongoing training for new technologies?

THE CONFERENCE AND THE EXHIBITION

The conference will be the event of the year for the engineering analysis community. A wide range of leading industrial experts, along with academic researches at the forefront of the simulation field, have been assembled. Their role will be to outline how educational institution and industry should prepare themselves to exploit simulation tools which will deliver virtual reality and beyond. The attendance of the leading hardware and software vendors at the accompanying exhibition will further serve to underline this fact.
